Ex Parte Quayle

1. This application is in condition for allowance except for the following formal matters:

In claim 1, on page 56 of the written description, lines 6-9 recites, "a first branch means for guiding the recording medium to be subjected to double face printing the conveying path for the discharge tray, onto the bypass conveying path, a reversing conveying." It appears as though this language includes a typographical error. Maybe the applicant meant, "a first branch means for guiding the recording medium to be subjected to double face printing, to the conveying path for the discharge tray, onto the bypass conveying path, a reversing conveying."

Claims 4-13 all improperly depend from multiple dependent claims.

Prosecution on the merits is closed in accordance with the practice under Ex parte Quayle, 1935 C.D. 11, 453 O.G. 213.

A shortened statutory period for reply to this action is set to expire TWO MONTHS from the mailing date of this letter.

Allowable Subject Matter

2. Claim 1 is indicated as having allowable subject matter because the prior art of record does not teach or render obvious the total combination claimed, including, a second transfer means located above a row of photoconductive drums, and a reversing conveying path for reversing the recording medium conveyed on the bypass conveying path during double face printing, a second branching means for guiding the recording medium reversed in the reversing conveying path from the bypass conveying path onto the horizontal conveying path during double face printing, and a return conveying path for conveying the recording medium which has passed through the second branch means onto the horizontal conveying path.
